ORDER FORM

There is a large literature of science fiction and speculation about science fiction waiting to be drawn upon by Indian readers. A considerable part of that is described in the anthology of essays that have been put together by Geetha B. and Amit Sarwal from a dozen knowledgeable sources, along with guides to further reading and study. The fact of this volume is in itself a testament to the way in which science fiction, the literature of the new, is being accepted by one of the oldest nations. Exploring Science Fiction: Text and Pedagogy is your guide to the larger world of science fiction - larger in both senses, but particularly the sense that it includes everything from the birth of the universe to its final end. Prof. James Gunn, Emeritus Professor of English, University of Kansas, USA

Geetha B. and Amit Sarwal have done an outstanding job selecting essays that connect science fiction to a range of critical perspectives and classroom situations. Exploring Science Fiction: Text and Pedagogy might be designed primarily for the Indian scholar who is new to this dynamic field of inquiry, but I predict it will be of great interest to both novice and expert science fiction scholars across the globe. Dr Lisa Yaszek, Associate Professor and Director of Undergraduate Studies, School of Literature, Communication, and Culture, Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta, USA

It is a great move that most of the English departments in India have started giving option for a course in Popular Fiction at both post-graduate and under-graduate levels. In recent years Science Fiction has also gathered momentum. It is the need of the hour to find the methods of teaching SF in India. Exploring Science Fiction: Text and Pedagogy is a pioneer attempt by Geetha B. and Amit Sarwal. They with the help of the contributions of the world renowned SF gurus, critics, scholars, and writers provide plausible solutions to the contemporary pedagogical problems faced by our teachers. Dr M. H. Srinarahari, Secretary, Indian Association for Science Fiction Studies (IASFS)

Dr Geetha B. is Assistant Professor at the Department of Languages, Birla Institute of Technology & Science (BITS), Pilani.

Dr Amit Sarwal is Assistant Professor at the Department of English, Rajdhani College (University of Delhi), New Delhi.
